VANCOUVER

Lounge Act

Demi, Ashton and Beyoncé are among the top celebs lounging in funky robes by Deep Cove-based line Disrobe. Jen Eves, who designs, prints and cuts, and Colleen Fulton, who tags, irons and packages, make up this dynamic young company known for its funky vintage-print and silkscreen-designed, flannel-lined housecoats. At the recent "It List" party of Entertainment Weekly, the robes were offered in goody bags to generate publicity among trend-conscious circles. Good fortune is sure to continue with the addition of printed tees, boyfriend undies and men's robes. — Alexa Forsyth

Simple Plan

Vancouver's trendy Main Street strip is the place to visit for everything from handmade furniture to retro-style dresses. First stop: simple, a tony store with contemporary home wares and accessories. Owner and design consultant Kelly Deck has created a space that is neither fussy nor bland for custom-designed handmade textiles and cushions, stylishly presented on shelves alongside elegant ceramics, chrome and glassworks. A massive floor-to-ceiling turquoise vase sculpture proves this shop is anything but simple. — AF
